STEVE BALMFORTH

THE famous Derwent Valley Railway is calling "all aboard" as it steps up its push to get trains running again from New Norfolk to National Park.

DVR chairman Paul Jones said community support was now needed to make it a reality and he invites the community to come along to the yard in Station Street any Wednesday or Saturday and have a look at what DVR has achieved.

DVR has been an active member of the local community for more than 25 years.

"Get on board," Mr Jones said. "We hope the issues causing current restrictions will be sorted so a tourist train will operate from New Norfolk."

Derwent MLC Craig Farrell, who is on a Legislative Council train study tour, said from New Zealand there was a tremendous opportunity to make it happen.

"Being on this tour reinforces what we have in the DVR and National Park. We are staring at this great opportunity. We just need to get some extra funding to make it happen," Mr Farrell said.

"The Derwent Valley Council is keen, and I am keen to work with Infrastructure Minister Jeremy Rockliff on this tremendous opportunity.

"We are about 80 per cent of the way to getting the line running again."

with Polly McGee

Final week on the hustings, and interestingly mothers created a pleasing distraction in the campaign last week. A timely Hallmark moment in the lead up to Mother's Day, where we pay homage to those who borned and/or raised us.

Bill Shorten gathered the media cracks to the fray by praising his mother on the ABC's Q and A program, only to have her brilliant career maligned by a journalist who clearly got the mood of the country wrong when it comes to criticising another man's mum.

Even ScoMo couldn't make any mileage on the brutally critical article in The Daily Telegraph widely reported as an own goal for that paper. Mumbaiting just isn't cricket in this country no matter what side you are on.

What resulted was an interesting response on social and traditional media of praising our mothers for what they have given us, what they have sacrificed, and an acknowledgement of our reliance on mothers in the most fundamental sense.

Not a peep of electioneering got through the loving hashtags for a least a day, and the general public were all pre-loaded with the right emotion when Mother's Day rolled around on Sunday – florists must have been rubbing their hands with glee as it all

Back in the serenity of the non-marginal seat of Lyons, I may have kicked an own goal in giving The Lady Squire the V8 of leaf blowers for Mother's Day. It was at her request, as anyone who respects the sanctity of a quiet weekend morning would never voluntarily buy a leaf blower for someone else.

The beast from Bosch blows, sucks and mulches. It bears some resemblance to an industrial bagpipe complete with over shoulder safety harness. As The Squire is knee high to a grasshopper, it is basically as tall as her, and I suspect that I will soon freely. Sometimes a little too freely. I told Mum my column this week was on mothers. She asked that I mention that there is an unpainted panel on the bridge over the Derwent that looks very shabby and offends her every time she drives into town and could something be done about it. Lols.

Enjoy the final campaign days of future cash splashing and one-upmanship this week before you get your well-deserved democracy sausage and contribute to the future of the region, one overly long ballot sheet at a time.

add leaf blowing and mulching to my list of daughterly duties, which include wood stacking, BBQing and going on missions to far flung out-of-valley kitchenware stores for rare baking items.

I secretly like being relied on for these oh so domestic things, and am thrilled to have the chance to give back in ways that seem small, but I know mean a lot to her. Like Bill Shorten, my mother sacrificed many things to give me the start to life she did, but her most important contribution was instilling resilience and drive by her own example - and her many helpful tips for living, which she continues to dispense

Group to develop autumn appeal

ROGER HANSON

LOCAL tourism group Derwent Valley Tasmania wants to hear from businesses and organisations to develop a 2020 autumn program of events to showcase the region as a destination for seasonal visits.

Lisa West from Stanton Farmhouse Bed and Breakfast said the expectation was that the program would become an annual celebration.

"We will be building on our assets in the Valley and Central Highlands such as the river, autumn colours, hop growing, whiskey, rum, beer, cider and wine production, paddock-to-plate food producers, accessible wilderness, and family adventure experiences," Mrs West said.

"We are heading up a working group within the auspices of the Derwent Valley and Highlands Tourism Group (DVT) to develop a coordinated portfolio of events throughout the autumn months in 2020."

DVT is a membership based local tourism group which exists to promote the Valley and its members.

"The intention is to increase visitor numbers and length of stays over the whole autumn period with a focus on the major holiday period of the Easter long weekend," Mrs West said.

The Autumn Program portfolio of events will be showcased on the Derwent Valley Tasmania website, social media and other media opportunities.

"DVT also works with Destination Southern Tasmania and will use this association to gain further marketing reach.

"Our region benefits from mild weather and beautiful autumnal colours perfect for memorable visits and multi-day breaks for Tasmanians and mainlanders.

Mrs West said there $3000 marketing grants available for a business or organisation running an event in the next 12 months.

This an Events Bushfire Recovery grant and is available for events in the Valley and Highlands to amplify their marketing message and draw visitors to our region.

Application must be lodged by June 30, 2019. See www.eventstasmania.com.au

Frascati open house

HISTORIC Frascati House at Willow Court in New Norfolk will be open for inspection this Sunday as part of the National Heritage Festival.

Entry will cost $5 per person or $10 for a family, with tours and information being provided by the Friends of Frascati between 11am and 3pm.

Built for Colonial Secretary John Burnett in 1834, the house later served as the official residence for medical superintendents of the Royal Derwent Hospital.

The Friends work mainly in the garden but are hopeful that restoration of the convict-built house will start in earnest this year.

Sunday's entry fees and a trade table will go towards the ongoing works at the house.

Latest from your neighbourhood

THE Derwent Valley Gazette has joined forces with New Norfolk Neighbourhood Watch to bring you a series of columns. This week we look at giving good descriptions.

How's your memory for details of events and people? Remembering details about people behaving suspiciously might help to protect a friend or neighbour and their property.

Describing people: Try and create a complete picture of the person from head to toe, remembering as many details as you can.

Is the person a man or a woman? How would you describe their age – 15-20, 20-30, 30-40? What you would say about the person's height, build and clothes? If you got a good look at the person's face, reporting eye colour, glasses, skin type and hair colour and type is also very useful information.

Reporting anything unusual about the person, including scars, tattoos, or piercings, might help identify them.

They may have a very individual way of walking such as jerky movements or limping.

If you hear them speak, notice anything unusual such as a stutter or accent.

Describing vehicles: Reporting the registration, type of vehicle – car, 4WD or van as well as the make, model and colour is a great start. It also important to report distinctive features such as bullbars, roof racks, towbars, artwork, damage or rust, the number of people in the vehicle and where it went.

Valley a co-star in international drama

ROGER HANSON

INTERNATIONAL star power came to the banks of the River Derwent in New Norfolk last week during filming for the new eight-part premium drama, The Gloaming.

Stan Original series, The Gloaming is being directed by a line-up of internationally renowned Australian talent.

On set locations Emesha Rudolf said the location was wonderful.

"All the locations in Tasmania are a delight, everyone is insanely helpful and wonderful," she said.

New Norfolk Rowing Club boats and crews will be seen in the series.

During filming 12 NNRC rowers, with two fours on the water and several parents and committee members and two coaches, acted as extras.

The club provided its Miss Anniversary wooden eight, two trestles and eight old wooden oars. The filming had the Woodbridge boutique hotel in the background.

During the segment directors wanted it to look like a rowing training session for The Gloaming cast who were on the bank being talked to by their coach.

The two on-water rowing boats and coach boat went past in the background. The coach with a megaphone in hand.

The series received major production funding from the Tasmanian Government through Screen Tasmania and Screen Australia, in association with Film Victoria, and was financed with support from Stan.

Currently filming in various locations across Tasmania, it will premiere exclusively on Stan next year, with the premium drama to be distributed by Disney's Global Content Sales and Distribution.

Tasmanian Vicki Madden, known for The Kettering Incident, is at the helm.

Acclaimed AACTA award-winning performers Emma Booth (Glitch, Once Upon A Time, Hounds of Love) and Ewen Leslie (The Cry, Safe Harbour, The Daughter) head up the cast.

"To have the opportunity to once again create a series based in Tasmania is a great privilege. Its gothic landscape and haunted past have inspired me since I was a child.

"I'm thrilled to have Emma Booth and Ewen Leslie bring my beloved Molly and Alex to life, and Stan and ABC Studios International on board to share The Gloaming with audiences around the world," Ms Madden said.

When an unidentified woman is found brutally murdered, detective Molly Mc-Gee (Booth) must team up with Alex O'Connell (Leslie), a fellow cop with whom she shares a tragic past, to solve the crime.

What begins as a routine investigation exposes something more insidious as political corruption and shady business dealings intertwine with sinister crimes and occult practices.

To catch the killer, Molly and Alex must face the ghosts of their past, the unsettled dead that linger in the liminal space between light and dark, life and death — the gloaming.

New Norfolk rowers provide a realistic backdrop for filming and, inset, on set locations for the production crew Emesha Rudolf.

Brigade raffle thanks

THE Westerway Junior Fire Brigade raised $2000 in its Mother's Day raffle, drawn on Saturday.

The brigade's Stefan Frazik, who co-ordinated the fundraiser, thanked the 30 businesses who supported the raffle.

"The support from the community we've had has been amazing," he said.

"The juniors aged 10-15 years old are tomorrow's fire fighters. They helped during the recent bushfire emergency with support at the station," he said.

"The money raised will allow them to compete in the state competitions in Launceston in November."

Raffle winners are C. Crack, 1, Marlene, 2, Craig Burgess, 3.

Shed to host big cuppa

THE Derwent Valley Men's Shed, is hosting Australia's Biggest Morning Tea 10am on Wednesday, May 22 at the Men's Shed, bottom of Blair Street, New Norfolk, right behind the High School.

Trevor Ethell, from the Men's Shed, who has been battling aggressive prostate cancer, urges people to attend a Biggest Morning Tea closest to them.

"This is why I now want to raise as much money for cancer research as possible, helped by friends, neighbours and members of the community.

"Without skilled intervention, research and ongoing clinical trials, I would have been dead seven years ago," he said.

"Love to see you all there at the Men's Shed."

Maydena to get a life-saving tool

THE Maydena Community Association will receive a defibrillator, a machine that saves lives.

Lyons MP Guy Barnett said it was fantastic news for the local community.

"Being a regular visitor to Maydena and seeing firsthand the amazing work in this community, I am pleased to announce the defibrillator funding and glad it will be available to potentially save lives in the area," Mr Barnett said.

Defibrillators make a real difference when someone suffers a cardiac arrest and can be the difference between life and death.

"It's a great outcome for the community."

Community urged to support tourist train

Rail service builds steam

The bureaucracy the DVR has been negotiating with for approvals and funding appears never ending. However with community support, Government involvement and general awareness, they are hopeful that the wheels are slowly starting to turn.

Tourist excursions to the Salmon Ponds and National Park were well patronised and it would be well received if the service was offered again.

The key element is that while waiting for access to the lines, the cost of restoring infrastructure increases each month.

The train service from New Norfolk was an integral part of community life in the Valley, with regular passenger services to Hobart, plus the small stops along the upper lines through to Maydena.

The regular log trains to Boyer were common and passenger service from Hobart to Boyer that transported employees to the paper mill.

In the 1960s the Hobart

The Derwent Valley Railway's steam train on the way to National Park.

Show train excursion was a special, and many would have fond recollections of this train journey.

The early passenger and freight services along the upper lines provided a much-needed delivery service to those living in the outlying areas of the Derwent Valley, with many of the sidings having a station master and railway maintenance workers to carry out routine maintenance.

For example, the Plenty station at the seven-mile position along the DV line was managed by a station master housed near the station who ensured that passengers and freight were loaded and unloaded as the trains arrived.

During the hop picking season, special services were run to bring the season workers, their family and a few prized possessions to the Plenty station, adjacent to the hop farms of Redlands and Glenleith, where up to 300 could be employed.

Unloading the families with children, dogs, furniture and clothing would be carried out, onto awaiting farm trucks and horse carts for transport to their basic hut accommodation for the duration of the hop picking season

Many of the seasonal workers took advantage of the Saturday and Sunday train services to Hobart, and load up with provisions for the return journey.

The situation would be reversed at the conclusion of the season with a hive of activity at the Plenty station loading up for the journey home.

This was a regular occurrence for many of the stations along that line.

The freight services allowed many to order goods and have them delivered a few days later, with many unscheduled stops being made to drop off goods to those waiting beside the line.

The railway was a major employer with the stations needing to be manned, maintenance crews, drivers, guards, fitters, and many providing supportive services.

I recall fortnightly pay day for the ANM employees at Maydena, the assistant paymaster from the Boyer Mill would travel on the log train with a Gladstone bag of cash, pay packets and a companion, acting as security to Maydena and then hand out the cash and return to Boyer that evening on the returning train.

Mr Mitchell said the DVR was to be commended on its work in trying to get this rail line operational.

"Although it has been many years since those great old locomotives ran to National Park, we will do what we can and get behind this important project that will mean so much for the Derwent Valley," Mr Mitchell said.

Action is required now, not in another 10 years when the rail lines are beyond repair, to bring the rail back to life.

Vote 1 sheepdog trials

JANE GALLICHAN

PREPARATIONS are well under way for the first dog trial in Ouse in living memory which will take place at Vicki Jones' sheep farm this weekend.

Event organiser, Gloria Tipper encouraged Derwent Valley locals to "vote early".

"But skip the democracy sausage and come out to the dog trial - we've got plenty of tucker, entry is free and the skill of the dogs and their handlers is impressive to watch," she said.

Tasmania's top dog trialler, Australian team captain and Hamilton local Bernard McGlashan will be competing with his dog Nell, who managed a near-perfect score of 98 out of 100 at Agfest last weekend.

Competition is expected to be fierce with northerner and Australian team mate Michael Grant along with Lee Jamieson expected to keep the standard of competition high.

"There will be plenty of skilled competitors but also some new faces and that's what we like to see."

"We'd really like to see the Derwent Valley turn out to this event - they just ran a dog trial in the Huon Valley and there we're 40 or 50 cars there.

The event is at 1110 Victoria Valley Rd, Ouse and will start at 8.30 am on both Saturday and Sunday concluding with the open final early Sunday afternoon. Spectators are asked to follow the signs and park as directed.

Millions wowed by team ski skill

with Leesa Winter

FIVE years ago when Montana Ling and her family moved to the Derwent Valley from Kingston she had already spent most of her life travelling back and forth to the picturesque waters of Meadowbank Lake for water skiing and wakeboarding fun.

That fun, that started when she was three-years-old, has turned into something a whole lot more in the past year with Montana selected to be an integral part of the "Stars Down Under Water Ski/Stunt Show Team".

Meeting the team in Melbourne in May last year for the journey to Changsha, the capital of central China's Hunan province. Here they were to spend three weeks training and preparing for a spectacular event to celebrate the opening of a new water and amusement park.

Several thousand people attended and the team's amazing ski pyramids, ballet line with Australian flag flying high was televised to an audience of more than five million.

Montana has taken her near celebrity status in Changsha in her stride and settled back into her peaceful life by the Derwent River, training with her dad Michael, brother Jace and mum Leilani driving the boat and steering her path to success.

The future looks bright for show skiing in Australia, as Sea World on the Gold Coast have resurrected the Ski Show Spectacular and 14-year-old Montana has her eye on the spot right at the top of the pyramid.

If you'd like to see the spectacular or follow Montana's waterskiing adventures you can follow her @montwakeski on Instagram.

Hard workers in the kitchen are Margaret Gaby, left, with Flo Ransley.

Act clarifies forest practices

AMENDMENTS to the Forest Practices Act will improve governance, administration, and clarify the intent of the Act.

These include provision for the recovery of unpaid or partially paid fees to the Forest Practices Authority, a widening of the scope of membership of the FPA, development of a Code of Conduct for Forest Practices Officers and an ability to direct the rehabilitation and revegetation of land where the Act has been contravened (including the recovery of costs).

The amendments were developed in consultation with the industry.

Resources Minister Sarah Courtney thanked the Tasmanian Farmers and Graziers Association and the Forest Industries Association of Tasmania for their role in developing the amendments.

"A strong industry requires a strong regulatory system, and the amendments," she said.

Weird, wonderful and so tasty

AS THE amount of produce from our garden lessens by the day, it's time to look further afield for interesting seasonal vegetables to prepare, preserve and use for general experimentation.

In such circumstances I know that I can always contact an adventurous farmer at Macquarie Plains – Derek Jones.

I met Derek very early after moving to the Valley when he brought me a few mangel wurzels to try.

I'd never heard of them, let alone cooked with them, but they immediately became a firm favourite.

Their puree is a perfect accompaniment to seafood and meats, and tempting to eat just by the spoonful.

I also like to cook it in a herbed bacon and onion sauce, casserole-style, in the wood stove for about an hour.

The original recipe uses swedes – not any more, they've long since been surpassed by the Mangels.

This week I contacted Derek and within two days he had brought me an amazing array of exciting options – not only mangel wurzels (red and golden) but also kohlrabi, ru-

kitchen wisdom

with Sally Wise

tagabas, crapaudines and seven wonderful yellow African horned melons.

Along with them were two large colourful pumpkins, all of this enough to keep me occupied and intrigued in the kitchen for days to come.

I love Derek's approach to growing.

He purchases rare seeds from mainland Australia, America and beyond.

He tends to buy seeds of produce that will potentially appeal to restaurateurs, cafes and home cooks.

His criteria include an interesting name, great colour and type and intensity of flavor.

The African horned melon seeds are a great success – attractive yellow orbs with spiky horned skin – fascinating. I am sure they will make some incredible preserve.

Actually they are delicious eaten raw – the bright green interior jelly-textured flesh tastes of pineapple, banana and a hint of something else deliciously intriguing that can't quite be defined.

Other produce he is growing is equally appealing – japonica striped corn for instance, with its deep red cob and striped leaves, and then he's trialing an asparagus pea with three cornered pod.

When accessing the seeds of these unusual vegetables, he implements a practice of planting out 100 seeds at a time.

If they come to fruition successfully, then they provide inspiration for exciting culinary options for chefs in Tasmania and beyond.

In fact if a restaurateur has an idea for a menu item that requires an unusual fresh ingredient, Derek will attempt to grow and harvest it for them.

The unusual looking but delicious African horned melon.

It is the all-important cross pollination of knowledge.

In Derek's case Neil Snare of Winstead Vineyard has generously mentored him for many years.

With all of this so readily at our fingertips and growers of the calibre of Derek, the Derwent Valley is becoming recognised for its culinary potential and diversity of produce – a reputation that is well deserved and is long overdue.

Lucky giant returns to deep

fishing

with Adam Rice

IT may be a good time to target big southern bluefin tuna here in Tasmania but it's also the time for game anglers to be chasing broadbill swordfish.

Gun father and son anglers Mason and Daniel Paull do just that and they managed to catch and release their biggest swordfish to date last week off St Helens.

Using bait they lost something decent on the first drop after it launched out of the water miles away.

The second drop proved unsuccessful but on the third drop the rod bent over and the reel started to scream.

Both knew they were onto something massive and at first the fish didn't do a lot as it probably didn't realize it was hooked.

Once it did the big sword took line off the reel at will and after Daniel managed to get all that line back it took it all again and decided it wanted to stay in deep water.

To cut a long story short after an exhausting four hour fight the estimated 300kg plus swordfish was swimming beside the boat where it was tagged, revived and released.

On closer inspection the fish had a commercial long line hook in its jaw with a heap of heavy line trailing behind it which was removed.

Daniel Paull swims the estimated 300kg plus broadbill swordfish to the boat prior to release.

To cap off the memorable story while Mason and Daniel caught their breath and prepared to head for home the massive fish appeared on their depth sounder as it swam back down to deep water.

In the south school southern bluefin tuna to 50kg are available off the Hypolyte's and Tasman Island and squid and flathead are still being caught in Marion Bay but be prepared to sift through some small ones.

Bronte check

THE Inland Fisheries Service released information last week on Bronte Lagoon's trout population.

During September in 2018 160 box traps were set over two nights across Bronte Lagoon and 292 trout were caught.

There were 281 brown trout, 10 rainbow trout and one brook trout caught and all of these fish were weighed and measured.

The average weight for all trout was 573g.

The average weight for trout over 300mm was 653g with 83 per cent of the catch being greater than 300mm in length.

Only two per cent of brown trout were over 500mm but there were a big number of different sizes and overall no signs of poor recruitment/spawning over the past five to six years.

These results still show a large number of smaller fish in the population and like other overpopulated waters anglers are encouraged to take a few fish during a season to help improve growth and size.

Tip Of The Week

With an increase in boat trailer tampering at boat ramps around Tasmania make sure you check every detail on your trailer before and after every outing.

This includes wheels, tyres and nuts, chains, straps, brakes, lights and suspension.

If you see anyone acting suspiciously at any boat ramp report it to the police.

Send in your fishing reports, pics and tips to valleyfishes@gmail.com and keep track of the Derwent Valley Gazette Fishing page on Facebook.

Don't forget Trout Weekend at Liawenee/Great Lake this Saturday and Sunday from 10am to 3pm each day.

There is plenty to keep everyone entertained and if you love trout fishing it's a must-see.

Entry is by gold coin donation with the money raised going to the Fisheries Habitat Improvement Fund Inc.

Tight Lines until next week.

Sharks bite hard

ROGER HANSON

NEW Norfolk showed on Saturday it deserves to be near the top of the SFL ladder but needs to tighten up on the smaller aspects of its game to go to the next step.

The Eagles had the bite put on them by the Dodges Ferry Sharks, losing 10.9 (69) to 12.9 (81) at Boyer.

New Norfolk dominated the first term but yielded little for their efforts kicking five points before their first goal, eventually running out the quarter five points ahead 3.5 to three straight.

New Norfolk coach Josh Clifford said his team missed opportunities.

“Our confidence went down after the first quarter, then in the second term Dodges really took advantage of that slamming on six goals to our none,” Clifford said.

By half-time the game had been turned on its head.

The Eagles hit the board in the last quarter kicking four goals, while holding the Sharks within in reach.

“We still need to focus on our kicking, we tended to kick long rather than lowering our eyes to hit a target,” Clifford said.

Eagles danger forward Marcus Parker, despite finishing with three goals, was well held by his opponent Jake Murphy.

Of the New Norfolk players defender Blair Wardlaw again shone, especially holding up many Shark attacks in the last term.

Zek Slater, who is normally down back was switched to the wing, where he showed his ferocious side attacking the ball strongly.

Danial Coppleman battle hard down back in the first half before switching to the forwards in the second half to boot a crucial goal and hand in others.

“We have played the top two teams, we are definitely in it, and we need to fix the one percenters to keep improving and staying with the top teams,” Clifford said.

“We are showing plenty

Women get ‘A’ for effort

ROGER HANSON
THE New Norfolk women’s team again showed their resilience and determination to keep the pressure on North Hobart at New Town oval on Sunday.

The scoreboard did not reflect the game, with the Eagles attacking the ball hard to put North Hobart under pressure.

The pressure told with the Demons making mistakes to allow

New Norfolk to move the ball into their forward line more often but couldn’t score.

Stand out New Norfolk players were Chantel Skegs, Corina Percy, Jemma Foley, Jaz Skelly, Tahlia

Mundy and Kaitlin Rainbird.

The group is starting to work as a team and that approach will soon pay off with scores on the board.

The Eagles fought hard all game and should be proud of their efforts.

around the ball, so there is a lot to like about how the players are going.”

This weekend is the SFL representative game. Eagles supporters are urged to look for any players named in the team and get along to barrack for them.

The reserves took the foot off the accelerator in the second half losing by 24 points to Dodges. The Colts were right in their game until the last term losing by 15 points.
